

UZBEKISTAN STATE WORLD LANGUAGES UNIVERSITY

Current Collaboration with Healthcare Institutions at UzSWLU

Local cooperation | National cooperation | Formal agreements | Preventive health

Uzbekistan State World Languages University (UzSWLU) maintains current collaborations with local and national health and wellbeing institutions. The strongest documented arrangement is the official partnership with City Clinical Hospital No. 16, which extends the University's on-campus medical support through emergency care, specialist consultation, diagnostics, inpatient treatment and referral services. Signed memoranda with sports institutions and a documented joint initiative with a family polyclinic further support prevention, healthy lifestyles and community wellbeing, alongside ongoing national-level cooperation with the Ministry of Health.

Institutional approach

For this report, a current collaboration is an ongoing formal agreement or a documented institutional relationship that produces health and wellbeing activity over time. One-off lectures by individual specialists are not treated as institutional collaboration unless the healthcare organization itself is identified as a partner. This distinction keeps the evidence focused on the University's relationships with health institutions and separates it from community health outreach programs.

National-level health activities

Beyond the formal agreements above, cooperation with the Ministry of Health of the Republic of Uzbekistan and its subordinate institutions delivered a sustained program of activities during 2024–2025, including:

- 14 June - a roundtable held for International Donors Day, addressing donor culture, healthy lifestyle and the social responsibility of young people, alongside a voluntary blood donation campaign ("Birga hayotni saqlaymiz") organized in partnership with the Republican Blood Transfusion Center, in which approximately 150 students and staff took part.

- Systematic awareness sessions on cardiovascular and cerebrovascular disease risk factors, covering early warning signs, healthy nutrition, physical activity and stress prevention.
- Premarital medical screening and reproductive health education delivered with practicing gynecologists and specialists.
- A roundtable held for World Health Day, addressing healthy lifestyle, nutrition, work-rest balance and personal responsibility for health.

Documented result

Taken together, these collaborations combine hospital-level referral and access, formal agreements with sports and Olympic training institutions, community-level preventive work with a family polyclinic and the mahalla, and a sustained national program of health screenings and awareness activity coordinated with the Ministry of Health. The clearest outcome is improved access to appropriate care; the broader result is stronger prevention and healthier participation in university and community life.
