UZBEKISTAN STATE WORLD LANGUAGES UNIVERSITY

Accessible Childcare Facilities for Students

Free campus children's rooms | Supervisor and educator | Flexible study | Kindergarten partnership

Uzbekistan State World Languages University provides accessible, free-of-charge childcare on its campuses so that student mothers can attend classes. Each campus has a children's room where a supervisor and an educator look after the children of visiting students and University staff while their parents attend classes or carry out their duties. The arrangement is set out in the University's Maternity Policy, which applies to female students as well as female staff.

Campus children's rooms

Every University campus has a dedicated children's room. Each room is staffed by one supervisor and one educator, who provide supervision and age-appropriate educational activities for the children of students and staff who are on campus. The service is available free of charge.

Because the rooms are located on the campuses where classes take place, a student who is a recent mother can bring her child with her, attend lectures and seminars, and continue her studies without having to arrange separate childcare in advance.

At the Main Building, the children's room is part of the University's Mother and Child Room, which is equipped with the essential items needed for young children and offers full child-friendly conditions, from toys to modern smart TVs and boards. Care in the room is free of charge and is provided mainly for the children of University employees and students. Children up to six years of age are cared for there, and their health is monitored by the University medical point. The room is coordinated by the University psychologist and is supervised during working hours, from 08:00 to 18:00. It therefore works as both a childcare and a family-support facility, giving recent mothers a practical option for attending University activities while remaining close to their children.

The Mother and Child Room is also used for child-focused educational and cultural activities, including fairy-tale and stage performances, a Child Protection Day event, and a New Year meeting at which the Rector and the Trade Union Committee Chair met employees' children and presented gifts.

Partnership with a private kindergarten

In addition to the campus rooms, a private kindergarten, Nihol, operates next to the University's main campus. In 2023 the University concluded an agreement with the kindergarten, under which children of University employees and students, who are its main users, are cared for free of charge. The kindergarten offers full child-friendly conditions, from toys to modern smart TVs and boards. This gives University families a second free option alongside the campus rooms, which offer the same conditions inside the University.

Supporting arrangements for student mothers

Childcare is supported by other measures set out in the Maternity Policy and delivered through University units:

- Flexible study arrangements for expectant and new mothers, including online classes, extended assignment deadlines and modified examination schedules, agreed with academic advisers as individual study plans.
- Health check-ups, counseling and maternity-related advice through the University's medical unit and the Psychological Service, which provides confidential individual and group support.
- Guidance and referral to appropriate support through the Women's Advisory Council, which identifies women who need assistance and facilitates social, legal, psychological and material support.
- Administrative handling of approved study adjustments through the Registrar's Office, which manages student records and academic service requests.

Policy basis

The Maternity Policy, approved in January 2025 and due for review in January 2028, provides that each University campus has a children's room, available free of charge and staffed by a supervisor and an educator, and that the University has a memorandum of cooperation with a private kindergarten next to the Main Campus. The policy is monitored by the Human Resources Development Department and the Department of Youth Affairs, Spirituality and Enlightenment, together with the Women's Advisory Council, with feedback gathered annually from staff and students.

Conclusion

UzSWLU provides accessible childcare that allows recent mothers to attend University courses: free children's rooms staffed by a supervisor and an educator on every campus, a free-of-charge partnership with a private kindergarten beside the main campus, and flexible study arrangements agreed with academic advisers. These measures are published in the University's Maternity Policy.
